LOCAL MENTION.

The Weather.

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER. WASHINGTON, D. C., February 21, 1885, 10 a. m. For the middle Atlantic states, fair weather, northwesterly winds shifting to northeasterly in southern portion, slight rise in temperature. For Sunday.—The temperature will rise slowly in the middle Atlantic states, the Ohio valley, Tennessee, the south Atlantic and east gulf states, with increasing cloudiness followed by local snows or light rains.

IN NEW YORK CITY,-Mr. J. S. Lawrence, general agent of the company, who has an office at | And that example was exhibited for all nations 819 Pennsylvania avenue, received a dispatch and for all ages, never to be forgotten or over-early yesterday morning that the immense looked, by him who was born, one hundred and building owned and occupied by the company. covering six city lots, comprising Nos. 322-24-26-28-30 and 332, on West 37th street, were ablaze, and would probably prove a total loss. Dispatches received by him later in the day, as able property. The company have several large contracts with our own and foreign governments, beside large orders for bank work, but Mr. Lawrence informs us there will be but little delay in executing these or any contracts they may receive, as the company will immediately rebuild and equip their works, having provided temporary quarters in which to carry on their business. The company had a large number of new safes stored at their warerooms and office, 265 Broadway. Their trade will be supplied from this stock until their temporary works are time. The splendid force of skilled mechanics who have served this company for years will not be thrown out of employment, but will be put to work immediately, adjusting machinery and getting everything in readiness to resume

THE WOUNDED AND THE DEAD.

The wounded postal clerks, who are at the Braddock house in Alexandria, have much improved. J. T. Fraysey, the colored man with them, is in quite a critical condition, and is thought to have been injured internally. The remains of Andrew Augur, Thomas Darley, Thomas Maloney and George Freyer were cared for by Undertaker Wheatley, of Alexandria. The caskets with the bodies of Augur, Maloney and Freyer have been brought to Washington.

Hon. Horatio King, Sec'y W. M. A. My Dear Sir: I sent the first letter written by my own hand ince my illness to Senator Sherman yesterday, elling him that I had been compelled to abandon the last hope of being at Washington next week. This will be a disappointment to you and others,—perhaps even to Congress and the country;—but certainly to myself beyond all others. I had hoped for some weeks past to be able to be present at the great cere-monial, and to pronounce a few opening sen-tences of my oration before handing it to Gov. Long. But "man proposes and God disposes," and I will not murmur at what I am sure has been ordered wisely. My physician and my family forbid my thinking of leaving home at present. Indeed, I have not left my house, and hardly my chamber, as yet; and I should have been utterly unable to undergo the fatigues of a journey to Washington, or to deliver any part of my oration, if I had reached there. My son has communicated to me, from time to time, your kind letters, and I thank you for them. I trust all things will go off well. It is a great satisfaction to me that Gov. Long has so vice and have sought to obtain it. I kindly consented to read the Oration. I hope that our friends will be satisfied with it. If it shall revive some impressions of the real grandeur of Washington's character, to which neither Obelisks or Orations can do full justice,

THE PRODUCTION OF "FALKA" at Albaugh's opera house next week by the McCaull company will be one of the most pleasing events of the season, if Chassaigne's bright little opera is presented with the completeness and spirit which marked its original production at the Casino, New York. There is every reason to believe that it will be so presented, as the cast is substantially the same and the brilliant costumes used in New York will be seen here. Mr. McCaull has won for himself an excellent reputation as an intelligent and enterprising operatic manager, and his companies usually show careful and tasteful direction. The leading roles in "Falka" are filled by Miss Bertha Ricci, Miss Ray Samuels, Miss Lily Vinton, Miss Annie Lislie, Miss Alice May, Miss Helen Standish, Mr. John Howson, Mr. Geo. C.
